

Pronouns after prepositions

Preview

- Pronouns
- Pronouns after prepositions
- Mí and ti
- Adding emphasis

< Back

Next >

Preview

Main

Pronouns

- Pronouns can stand for the same noun yet still have different forms, depending on how they're being used in the sentence.

Both stand for Javier

Yo soy Javier. Tengo quince años y me gusta dibujar.

Pronouns after prepositions

- You already know subject pronouns and the pronouns used with gustar.
- Pronouns have a different form when they come after prepositions, such as a (to), de (of, from, about), con (with) and en (in, on, at).

Subject	With gustar	After preposition
yo	me	mí
tú	te	ti
usted		usted
él	le	él
ella		ella
nosotros(as)	nos	nosotros(as) vosotros(as)	os	vosotros(as)
ustedes		ustedes
ellos	les	ellos
ellas		ellas

Mí and ti

- The pronouns mí and ti combine with con to make the special forms conmigo and contigo.

Adding emphasis

- With gustar, the phrase formed by a and a pronoun can be added to a sentence to clarify or emphasize who likes something.

adds emphasis

¿A ti te gusta dibujar?

adds emphasis

A mí no me gusta. A ella le gusta.

clarifies

< Back

Next >

Preview

Main